FULL CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM

TEN DAYS OF ENTERTAINMENT HAVE BEEN PLANNED.

Something to Interest Everybody—Music—Entertainments—Lectures and Fun.

The full program for the First Annual Session of the Gettysburg Chautauqua Assembly has been completed. The day should be kept prominently in mind, August 18 to 27 inclusive. All the entertainers and instructors have been engaged. The work of preparing for the chautauqua is being pushed forward vigorously and everything will be done to make it an unqualified success so as to insure it being made an annual affair.

It is possible that very many of our people have never been on the ground selected for the chautauqua and they will be surprised at the beauty of the spot. The high ground east of Baltimore street, to the rear of the residences of Col. Cope and Ferdinand Warner and others will be found to be an ideal location. The site overlooks the town and gives a magnificent view of mountains. It really affords a most pleasing picture of the town different from that obtained from any other point.

The officers in charge of the chautauqua are the following: Hon. Wm. H. Tipton, President; H. T. Weaver, Vice President; J. A. Cox, Secretary; T. P. Turner, Treasurer, and directors, besides those named, Dr. T. C. Billheimer, M. K. Eckert, C. S. Reaser, Geo. L. Kieffer, and Dr. John G. Scorer. The superintendent will be Dr. Scorer, platform manager Geo. L. Kieffer and pianist, Miss Lily Bartholomay.

The sale of tickets has passed the 700 mark and very many people have put off the buying until near the chautauqua and as that time is now at hand a rapid increase in sale of tickets is expected.

END OF JULY WEDDINGS

DESCRIPTIONS OF RECENT TYING OF THE KNOTS.

Honeymoon Trips Planned Include one to Europe of an Adams Co. Bride.

Only brief notice could be given to the following two weddings, which took place as we were going to press last week.

YOHN—HOWARD—A very pretty home wedding was that of Miss Charlotte W. Howard of Strasburg township, near this place and Ernest H. Yohn of Harrisburg. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride at noon on Tuesday of last week. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Howard.

The bride wore a gown of white satin messaline trimmed with baby Irish lace and pearl beads. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. Her sister, Miss Margaret Howard, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of white embroidered batiste and carried roses. Mr. Yohn's brother, Robert Yohn, was best man.

Mrs. Mattie B. Howard, of Gettysburg, played the Lohengrin march. The ring service was used, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Joseph B. Baker, of Gettysburg, and Rev. Dr. C. K. Swartz, of Baltimore.

The house was prettily decorated with ferns and wild flowers. A reception and wedding dinner was served immediately following the ceremony and during the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Yohn left for a tour which will take in Niagara Falls, the Great Lakes and Canada. They will live in Harrisburg upon their return where Mr. Yohn is in the music-business with his father, E. W. Yohn. The bride has a wide circle of friends in and about Gettysburg. Mr. Yohn graduated from Gettysburg College in 1910. He was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

A Veteran Visits Gettysburg.

Cyrus J. Butler, of Reading, who had been in the 179th Pa. Regiment and afterwards a Sergeant in the 198th Pa. Regiment, visited the Battlefield last week. His elder brother William H. Butler, who was also from Berks county, in Co. E, 151st Pa. Inf., was among the first men killed on the morning of July 1st, 1863, near the place where and the time when Gen. Reynolds was killed. His body was buried in a trench with others and now sleeps among the hundreds of unknown in our National Cemetery.

Fell and Broke Several Ribs.

George F. Slagle, the well known and highly respected citizen of Oxford Township, near Bittinger's Station, Adams County, had a narrow escape from serious injury Sunday night, July 23, when he became confused along the W. M. R. R. trestle, about 1-4 mile above Bittinger, and stepped off the approach to a gully, at that place.

Mr. Slagle had attended services at Valley Chapel and hearing of the wreck above Bittinger Station that evening, walked down the railroad track, and on his return became confused by the shifting of a freight train. He was walking beside the tracks and not realizing how near he was to the bridge, slipped off and fell to the bottom of the gully. The accident occurred about 10 o'clock.

Mr. Slagle was conveyed to his home. On examination it was found that several ribs had been fractured besides numerous bruises over his body. Mr. Slagle is recovering rapidly from his injuries and is able to walk about.

A large number of friends extended congratulations and best wishes for success. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds will be at home to their friends after September 1st at No. 456 East Church St., Elmira, N. Y. The bride has a circle of friends in Gettysburg, whose acquaintance she formed while on a visit, a few years ago, and is a niece of Misses Vina C. Weirick, and Elizabeth Weirick of this place, her mother being Mrs. Ada E. Magee, nee Weirick, formerly of Gettysburg.

Town Meeting.

A town meeting was held in the court house last Friday evening to consider ways and means of securing the annual conference of the Church of the Brethren in 1912.

Bishop Hollinger first explained what a meeting of the conference would mean. That the conference would be held in latter part of May and usually 30,000 people attended the conference and that a number of people had written to local members of the church, saying that if the conference was held at Gettysburg from 5,000 to 10,000 more people would attend than at any other point.

The people start to come on a Tuesday. The crowd arrives on Thursday and keeps coming in until Monday. On Whit Sunday the largest attendance is expected. The business sessions begin on Tuesday of second week and usually end on Thursday. Tickets are sold good for 30 days and would be deposited here so everyone would come here and would have to return here to start on their homeward way.

The conference would need an auditorium to seat 5,000 people, which would have to be 100 ft. wide by 150 ft. long with a rostrum. This structure is usually temporary, built on posts, with a roof to turn water for 10 days and open sides. The building is equipped with board seats without backs. An eating pavilion would be needed.

The Springs Hotel is adapted for committee rooms and the location at that point could be made to answer admirably all needs. The people who attend conference are accustomed to pay not less than 25 cents a night for such lodgings as is obtained in tents and more according to the accommodations furnished.

The work of the committee composed of R. C. Miller, J. B. Wineman and E. W. Widder, was then explained. The committee with members of the church of the Brethren and others had gone over the Springs Hotel site, and found it ideal. The hotel and grounds could be rented at a reasonable rate. Repairs to buildings would be needed and had been gone over by a contractor. The grounds would have to be cleaned up, the brush in woods cleared out, a bridge over the run built, water and light provided in addition to the buildings and the lowest estimate for such outlay was estimated at $6,000 while some believed it would go to $8,000 or $9,000.

It had been sought to interest the railroad officials in what was believed to be a most reasonable proposition, that each railroad and the town take care of a third of the expense. That while the railroads had been non-committal, it seemed as though the W. M. R. R. looked favorably upon the proposition, but the Reading had not yet expressed itself on the same. The Reading had promised to send a representative to the meeting but he was not present.

The contributions the committee recommended should be secured in the shape of notes maturing after the conference and guarantees. The cash needed in the building would be raised by the discounting of the notes. The net income from lodging, etc., would be applied pro rata to notes and guarantees. That in the opinion of some with good management the income ought to cover expenses so that liability on notes and guarantees would be next to nothing. In any event it was believed the pro rata liability on notes and guarantees would be small.

Those present were asked to discuss the plan add after some discussion and explanation, the meeting voted an approval of the plan.

The committee to secure subscription will canvas this week and the matter will be vigorously pushed and it is the belief of those best acquainted with the situation that if the railroads do their part—and as receiving a big slice of the money spent in the fares there is no reason why they should not do their part—that Gettysburg will have a good chance to get the conference at the meeting on Aug. 16, at which the matter will likely be decided.

The Applause of Silence.

"I was playing in a small town," said Dora Debo Whalen, who is soon to be seen here, "and our biggest, best act was on. I worked hard, but couldn't get a clap, and neither could any of the actors. The ominous silence made our troupe fear bad eggs which are wont to get mashed on ac-tresses. At the end of the act I hid my mortification and spoke to the theatre manager about the lack of applause. 'That's a great big compliment,' was his reply. 'The actors that were here last week we couldn't hear, because of the rough house audience. That was our usual experience. This is our first quiet night. Two policemen are in the audience, and the fellows who bought seats are afraid to move a finger.'"

Knocked Down and Robbed.

Hanson B. Hoar, living near Table Rock, was knocked down and robbed in the Globe Hotel stable last Wednesday night. Five men are charged with the deed, three are in jail, Henry Bradley, colored, of Attlesville, Ill., James Brady of Peoria, Ill., and Bill Thompson, colored, of this place. Two of the men charged, James Pittenturf and John Jones, are at large.

Hoar was in town last week and was at the Globe Hotel drinking and displaying a roll of money. He claims he had $100, and was spending it freely. It is said he went to the stable with the five men. Here he was knocked down and robbed. One eye was almost closed and he was struck about mouth and cheek.

Hoar complained to the police and Detective Wilson quickly arrested Bradley, who had been a hostler at the stable, Thompson, a porter of the hotel, and Brady. Susie Cook, colored, was later arrested on charge of helping Pittenturf and Jones to escape by driving them to Emmitsburg. Very little money was found on the three prisoners in jail and it is said that Pittenturf got away with the larger amount.

CHILDREN'S GAMES SPOILED BY THE SKY-SCRAPERS.

The Mania for Bath Rooms. The Secret of the American Woman's Charm.

"Games, you remember, go by a kind of immutable rotation—as much a law of childhood as gravitation of the universe. Marbles belong to spring, to the first weeks after the frost is out of the ground. They are a kind of celebration of the season, of the return to bare earth. Toys belong to autumn, hockey to the ice, baseball to the spring and summer football to the cold, snappy fall, and I seem to remember that even such games as hide-and-seek or puss-in-the-corner were played constantly at one period, not at all at another. If you played 'em out of time, they didn't seem right; there was no zest to them. Now, most of these game periods were determined long ago by physical conditions of ground and climate. They stem us back to nature. Cramp the youngsters in the artificial life of a city, and you snap this stem. My theory may be wild, all wrong. Yet I can't help feeling that our games, which we accepted and absorbed as a part of the universe, as much as our parents or the woods and fields, were a part of that nature, which surrounded us, linking us with the beginnings of the race. Most kids' games are centuries upon centuries old, they say. I can't help believing that for every sky-scraper we erect we end the life, for thousands of children, of one more game."—From "Mumblety-Peg and Middle Age," by Walter Pritchard Eaton, in the August SCRIBNER (Fiction-Number).

Mania for Bath Rooms.

THE HOUSE BEAUTIFUL for August telling of this mania for bath rooms says: A comparatively poor man who inherited some land in the wealthy Colony of Bernardsville commissioned his architect to build him a $10,000 house. Though they had but a paltry $10,000 it could give them five bath-rooms. The architect expostulated against such immoderation, but they were obdurate. For themselves, three children, quite grown, and two maids, five bath rooms were a positive necessity. So were four huge fireplaces. Everything suffered in consequence. To boast of the number of baths in his new house gives the average client for more satisfaction than if he could say he had secured an original Jacobean mantelpiece, an Adam ceiling, or an old Colonial front doorway. How the mania torments the poor architect is too pathetic to be written. In the Bernardsville case cited, the lady still insists that he could have given her, for her $10,000 a little pergoia at the side of the house "if only he had used some judgment."

Secret of American Woman's Charm

"Foreigners are impressed by the peculiar attractiveness of American women," writes Grace M. Gould in the August WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION. "They say that, next to their own women, it is the American woman who charms the most."

"Now, why is this so?"

"It is because of the infinite variety of the American woman, which pleases the eye and holds the imagination. When any large number of women are under observation, attractiveness must imply constant change, for human nature soon wearies of what is monotonous. If the first, last, and every woman that the foreigner saw all looked and dressed alike, the first might well be the last for any interest he might feel in them."

"His experience is this: he meets the tall and stately wife of his club friend, whose poise and elegance are her conspicuous characteristics; next, he takes in to dinner a fluffy, confiding young creature without any poise at all. Later, perhaps, he meets a 'blue-stocking' girl, who looks at him critically through her lorgnette; and from her he turns to a demure, mouse-like maiden, whose infrequent gaze is soulful, and who says little, but who says it so intensely! The flirtatious girl and the athletic girl come in their turn, and he finds it all exhausting and bewildering."

"Yet he remembers distinctly each one of those American types, because each one, by her dress and her manner has emphasized her own identity."

Dog-Day Dog Scares.

During dog-days and attendant dog scares, don't get excited in any event. Remember the story of a mad-dog scare in a Jersey town recently. The suspected dog, amid great excitement, was, instead of being shot or clubbed to death, dragged to the headquarters of a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. The animal's mouth was wide open, its tongue stuck far out, and its mouth was caked with blood. Investigation soon showed that the dog, an unkempt, homeless little animal, had been endeavoring to make a meal of a bottle of muckage and that, in addition to having cut its mouth on the glass, had got itself all stuck up. Then quickly faded away one dog scare.—Suburban Life for August.

Conservation—Fish this Time.

With the colonization and civilization of any region a period of readjustment in the animal and vegetable life of that region begins. As the wilderness gives way to farms and towns, wild vegetation is supplanted by cultivated orchards and crops, and wild animals give place to domesticated stock. With a hundred white men employing innumerable contrivances for catching fish where once an Indian used only his primitive net, with streams dammed and factories pouring a flood of impurities into the water, and with other streams diverted to irrigate arid lands, fish disappear and many streams become wholly unadapted to the various aboriginal species once inhabiting them.

All this must take place if there is to be progress in the world. A city cannot stand in the midst of a primeval forest, for the people who inhabit the city must be fed by the fruits of the surrounding land and the forest must be cut down in order that the land be tilled. Streams must be converted into power, to turn machinery for the manufacture of the necessities of the civilized inhabitants. Thus wild animals must find new retreats or cease to exist, and fish, by the process of readjustment, disappear from from waters no longer adapted to them.—Dillon Wallace in the August O'FING.

Reporter Saves a Reputation.

In The American Magazine for August is an interesting article on newspaper making. Following is one story told:

"Reporters, being human, are cruel at times and generous at times."

"Once, when I was a reporter, nineteen years old, my 'chief' got hold of the facts involving a woman and a widower who was a former school teacher of mine. This widower had children as old as I, who had been schoolmates of mine. I did not particularly like or dislike this man, but I was seized with a desire to protect him. I thought that he was not really a vicious man, and, by a tremendous outpouring of words to the managing editor, I succeeded in stopping that story. It never saw the light of day. The widower subsequently married the woman, and the whole family are living happily together to-day. This happened a dozen or fifteen years ago. Two or three years ago I found among my papers the original 'copy' of the story that would knocked that man flat. I tore it up. Nobody—least of all the man or his wife—ever heard that in a newspaper office one night a battle was fought that saved those people."

"Lots of cruel things proposed for publication do not reach the public."

Great Railroad Terminal.

Among the many interesting articles in the August WORLD TO-DAY is "A Great Entrance to a Great City" by A. E. S. Beard, in which it is said just impressions generally color after thoughts. Particularly is this true in the case of those entering a large city. Chicago is therefore fortunate in that one of her great entrance ways, the Chicago and North Western Railway, now brings the visitor to the great central metropolis into a magnificent new terminal, the largest but one in the United States. The impression received from this new station is that of noble simplicity and spacious proportions, combined with every possible comfort and convenience. There has been no attempt at show; utility has not been sacrificed at display. The large expenditure of over $23,000,000 has been wisely used in the erection of a beautiful structure, provided with all modern appliances and the most up-to-date arrangements for practical and efficient service.

Recollections of Millet.

Charles Jacque in the August CENTURY Magazine writes of "Recollection of Millet" and tells the following story I sold Sessler a quantity of Millet sketches and this is how I got them. I went to his studio one morning and found the servant making a fire with pieces of paper that looked as if they had pencil marks on them. I examined them more closely and seeing that they were the painter's sketches, began to upbraid her for what she was doing, but she very coolly told me that her master had

Must help them at their work.

A Gettysburg citizen shows you how:

Mrs. John Menzies, 46 Breckentridge St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are an effective kidney medicine. I can recommend them just as highly today as I did two years ago when I gave a public statement in their favor. For a long time I was in poor health and finally kidney trouble made its appearance. The pains in my back were so severe that I could hardly move and often I became very dizzy. I had chills and headaches and knew that something must be done. On the advice of a friend, I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Store and to my gratification, their use restored me to good health. Doan's Kidney Pills are a blessing to kidney sufferers."

For sale by dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Ostermoor : Mattress : $15.00

is Better than all Others for these very Pertinent Reasons:

Most Comfortable bed ever slept on—soft, yielding, but springy and resilient—never packs or gets lumpy, or loses its feeling of newness. That is because it is made of Ostermoor sheets; built, not stuffed. We have scores of letters from doctors and competent judges who declare it the only

Absolutely sanitary mattress because dust cannot work into it; no vermin can harbor in it; a sun-bath is all the renovating it ever needs; it will not absorb dampness, disease germs, or any poison from perspiration or the atmosphere. It is always

Perfectly Dry because non-absorbent. If the ticking is dry, the mattress is dry. No taking cold from it, no unpleasant or musty odor about it; always fresh and sweet. Testimonials in our free book bear witness for those who have used it for thirty years or more and who do not hesitate to say that it Lasts a Life-time and stays in perfect condition. It never needs remaking or renovating. You may remove and clean the tick as often as you like.

No other mattress in the world, of any material, at any price, from any maker or through any dealer, can truthfully make and prove all the claims as can the Ostermoor. Do not take our word for it—our word is good—but if you will the proof is there from U. S. Government tests and reports, letters from prominent men and women and the testimony of schools, hotels, hospitals and steamships where extraordinary service is required.

The book is handsome as well as convincing; contains over 200 illustrations about beds of all ages about sleep, its lack (insomnia); about mattress-hair—some things will be surprising and you will wish you had known them long ago. Of course, it also explains the merits and styles of Ostermoor Mattresses, Church cushions, etc. This book costs you a post card; don't you wish a copy? ## PUBLIC SALE

OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

ON SATURDAY, SEPT. 2, 1911, the undersigned will sell public sale the following valuable farms and properties located at McKnightstown Station:

No. 1. A farm located at the McKnightstown Station, adjoining lands of Conrad Walter, Settler, Wm. O. Andrew and Tannery lot containing 60 acres more or less 6 acres of timber land, improved with a bank barn, a nine room weatherboarded dwelling house, the Cashtown stream passes through the meadow; good fruit on place. The farm is in the heart of the fruit belt; buildings are in good repair; land is in a high state of cultivation and location is not to be better. Several building lots will be cut off the farm at the Station and sold separately from the farm.

No. 2. A truck farm opposite the Western Maryland railroad adjoining lands of Walter, Settler, Wm. O. Andrew and the Cashtown road, containing four or five acres improved with a weatherboarded dwelling and other buildings. It is an excellent truck farm and should be seen now to understand its value for trucking purposes.

No. 3. The Tannery lots of Victor Dutten will be sold at the same time, being bounded by railroad and public road and includes the tannery, the coal bins, the scales, postoffice building occupied by Postmaster Simon P. Stover. The tannery building is 60x40 and three stories high. The machinery in building, personal property and bark sheds are reserved and will not be sold. This place could be most advantageously used as a warehouse for shipping. About sixty car loads of apples were shipped from this point last year. This property has a siding from the railroad and this siding could be made 900 feet long. A fine 25 horse power engine and a 40 horse power boiler will be offered with the property. Terms 1-3 cash and balance at 5 per cent. secured by judgment. Tannery will be offered in two parts.

These properties are headquarters for a large agricultural business and one of the best situations in the county for the apple trade.

No. 4. An acre of ground near Hensleman Station on W. M. R. R. and adjoining lands of Mr. Biessecker on east and running with the W. M. R. R. This piece of land is an ideal spot for the construction of a spring lake to supply spring water to Gettysburg by gravity. A lake 150 feet wide and 400 feet in length and about 12 feet deep could be made from banks already there and springs flowing a barrel of water every three seconds at a recent test would empty into the lake. This lake would be 113 feet above the level of Gettysburg. This acre will be sold with water rights upon condition that lake is constructed at an elevation so as not to include or do any damage to the springs feeding it located on other land of the undersigned. Mr. Stackhouse chief engineer of Phila. & Reading R. R. visited this place in 1905 and located this piece of ground as specially suitable for a spring lake. No. 4 will be sold at the McKnightstown property. Sale to begin at 1 o'clock when terms will be made known by W. C. DUTTEN.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

THE GREEN MONSTER

How a Man Surprised Another In His House and That Other's Confession

By David Waters Church

Norman Winters left the opera at 11, went to his club, lounged there till 12 and started home. He had begged his wife to go with him to the opera, but she had refused on the ground of having a headache.

Winters had noticed of late a disposition on the part of his wife to permit him to go where he liked, provided he would permit her to remain at home. She had never taken an interest in the gay world, preferring a few chosen friends to people of fashion. He believed she was keeping a secret from him. If given money to spend for luxuries the luxuries were not purchased. What did she do with the money?

When he reached home he put his latchkey into the lock, pushed open the front door, entered the hall, which was dimly lighted, and hung his hat and light coat that had covered his evening dress in a hall closet. Then he thought he would go into the dining room for a glass of water. Suddenly a man confronted him. He was in evening dress.

"Well, sir, what are you doing in my house?"

The man put his fingers to his lips. "Speak low," he said. "Would you compromise your wife—disgrace her—before the world? If you would you do not respect her as I do. Let us settle this matter without her knowing anything about it."

Winters was horror stricken. He stood looking at the man with eyes starting from his head, his face ashen, a shudder passing over his body.

"You have heard of Cranston, I suppose," said the intruder.

Winters did not hear. His mind was filled with the horror of his wife's infidelity.

"But you have never seen him," added the man.

Still there was no reply.

"I am Cranston."

Hubert Cranston was a young man whom every lady knew at least by reputation—a bachelor whose capital was his entree into fashionable society and a suit of evening clothes.

"This visit to your wife has been with perfectly pure motives. I came to ask her for a loan."

"I see," gasped Winters. "You are the person who has been getting amounts that I have given my wife to spend for luxuries."

"She has been very kind to me."

"Doubtless she remained at home to-night on purpose to receive you?"

"I confess that she did."

Winters stood deliberating what to do. He could not determine. All power of thought was crushed out of him.

"There is a way," said Cranston, "in which this affair can be settled without publicity and you will be revenged as well. Let us invent a cause for a quarrel. Then you can wreak your vengeance upon me in any way you please."

"What cause?"

"The same that has stood for the real one in a number of such cases. Tomorrow night I will meet you at your club. Of what club are you a member?"

"The Athenaeum," groaned Winters. "I can easily obtain an introduction there. I understand that bridge is played there every night. We will join a bridge party. You can accuse me of cheating. I will retaliate with an insult. Then you can kill me without a word being spoken against your wife."

Winters stood trying to fix his mind on what was being said. The plan found a lodgment in his brain, but that was all. When the speaker had finished Winters pointed to the door and said:

"Go!"

The man lost no time in obeying the order, but before leaving at the front door he turned and, holding his hand up and looking toward heaven, said:

"I swear that your wife is an innocent woman!"

Winters as soon as the door was closed threw himself down on a chair, held his head in his hands and sobbed.

But he did not long remain in this position. He must have air; he must get himself in a mood to think. In his excited condition he dared not meet his wife, fearing that he might do something terrible. He went out into the street and began to walk, he cared not where, so that he might reduce the fever in his brain. If what young Cranston had said respecting his wife's innocence were true he cared nothing for her having given him money. But every man, if he has a spark of honor in him, will assert the innocence of the woman with whom he has become involved. If Della cared enough for this worthless creature to give him money criminality was sure to follow.

He walked an hour before he could make up his mind to anything, then decided that he must have a friend to counsel with. Though it was after 1 o'clock, he went to the rooms of a bachelor friend, Marmaduke Brown. Brown had just come in from his club and was undressing. Winters told him the whole story. Brown endeavored to instill confidence in the wife's innocence into the unhappy man except so far as supplying a friend with money.

"But she has kept even her acquaintance with him from me," said Winters.

There was something so incriminating in this that Brown was silenced.

"I tell you what you do, Norman," he said—"tumble into bed here, go to sleep, and tomorrow we'll see what we can do to get at the bottom of the affair. I'm quite sure something will turn up to prove your wife's innocence. I know Cranston, and if you feel that you must punish him I will arrange matters for you."

Winters was persuaded and after a while went to bed, though not to sleep. He lay awake all night, various suppositions concerning his wife's connection with Cranston running through his mind, and in the morning arose unrefreshed and as feverish as when he had gone to bed.

Brown took him out to breakfast with him, and afterward both returned to Brown's rooms to concoct a plan of action. They talked an hour, but could reach no conclusion. Brown offered to go to Cranston and listen to what he had to tell of Della Winters' motives in supplying him with money and why he had found it necessary to meet her in her own house during her husband's absence.

"I have no confidence in any explanation," said Winters, with a groan. "Arrange with him, as he suggested, for some kind of a meeting between him and me that will not bring my wife into the affair."

"His thoughtfulness of your wife's reputation," replied Brown, "is more like Cranston than taking money from her. I'm astonished at the latter act." Cranston is poor as a church mouse, but I always considered him honorable and very proud."

"Such men are always nice about the reputations of the women they ruin."

Brown left his friend pacing the floor and went off to find Cranston. Winters spent half an hour alone, all sorts of suppositions running through his brain. At times it would flash upon him that it was all a gigantic mistake. Then the figure of the young man of fashion would come up as he had seen him in swallowtail coat and low cut white vest, confessing his identity, and he would relapse into his former condition, always running to the horror of his wife having transferred her affections to a society puppet who was not worth kicking across the street. Worse—had not Della declined to go out that she might keep an appointment with the fellow, and had not Winters caught him sneaking about his house in the middle of the night?

While he was thus engaged, his mind saturated with his trouble, the door was thrown open, and Brown came in with a young man fashionably dressed and of a very aristocratic mien, who stood staring at Winters. Then the stranger said angrily:

"What do you mean by accusing me of being in your house at midnight?"

"I didn't. You're not the man."

"I'm Effingham Cranston."

"See here," cried Winters with passion, "if you're in collusion with that whelp to get him out of a scrape I'll kill you and him too."

"But, Norman," interposed Brown, "this is Cranston. You said it was Cranston who was in your house last night."

Winters stood looking from one to the other wonderingly.

"He's not the man," he repeated.

"Who's been personating me?" exclaimed the real Cranston. "If I find out I'll give him the worst thrashing he ever got."

At this moment there was a ring at the telephone. Brown received the message, and the following dialogue took place:

Woman's Voice—Is that you, Mr. Brown?

Brown—Yes. Who are you, please?

Woman's Voice—Mrs. Winters.

Brown—Ah, yes! What can I do for you?

Mrs. Winters—My husband didn't come home last night at all. I'm frightened to death about him. I have telephoned to his club, and they say he left there about 12 o'clock. Have you seen or heard anything of him?

"No—yes. Hold the wire."

Brown turned to Winters and repeated the conversation. Winters' brain was in such confusion that he could make no suggestion as to what to reply. Brown put his lips to the speaking tube again.

"Hello! Is that you, Mrs. Winters?"

Mrs. Winters—Yes.

Brown—Your husband is here. He stayed with me last night.

Mrs. Winters—Did he? Oh, how relieved I am! Tell him to come home at once. Last night the house was robbed. All my jewelry and most of the silver is gone.

Brown—All right, Mrs. Winters. I'll send him right home.

Brown turned angrily to Winters and said:

"Norman, you've been sold by a burglar. The fellow must be pretty cool and have great inventive powers. If you'll think over what he said to you you'll see that it was just what was required to induce you to let him out rather than turn him over to the police. While he was talking with you his pals were doubtless getting the swag out through the back door."

Winters stood looking at his friend, relief and shame struggling in him for the mastery. Presently he said to Brown:

"Tell her not to mind the jewels or the silver. I'll make it all up."

"What excuse shall I make for your staying here?"

"Anything. Tell her I got boiling drunk at the club and you had to bring me home."

THE AUGUST MAGAZINES.

I told her to burn up the papers. I could hardly contain myself with astonishment, when in came Millet and I began to reproach him for the destruction of what I knew would sooner or later bring money. To all of which he calmly replied.

"Oh they are good for nothing. I have got out of them all I want." Just then I noticed a pile of paper in the corner, and I looked it over and found that it consisted of sketches.

"What will you take for the lot?" I asked.

"Anything you have a mind to give," said Millet.

"Will 500 francs be enough?"

"Oh yes."

"I handed him the money, and took the sketches home and counted 500. Soon after I sold them to Sensier.

And You Know Figures Won't Lie.

His hobby was the collection of data concerning the wealth of the world, and Adam Smith and the philosophers, John Stuart Mills and the famous economists could not have been more devoted to the task. He was sitting in the Bureau of Pensions waiting for still more figures, and as I sat down beside him he enthusiastically pointed to some figures giving the wealth of the United States from the first computation, made in 1791, which then approximated $750,000,000. The table which he showed me indicated an increase each year of about three and one-half per cent, compounded annually. When we consider that the average capital per capita of $193 in 1791 has jumped to $1,359 in March, 1911, the wonderful growth of a nation of ninety-two million souls can be easily realized.

Again, he had figured that the money in circulation in the United States, if equally divided, according to some propagandists, would give about $34.50 to each person. The general stock of money in the United States at the present time is upward of $3,500,000,000. Of this $303,827,000 is held in the Treasury as the asset of the government, while $3,226,898,000 is counted as the amount of money now in circulation. Roughly, this would seem to indicate that there is $274,000,000 of capital not in circulation—our "hidden talents." Now the postal savings banks are to supplant the old arm-chairs and stockings where savings formerly were stored.

As I left my new friend he jingled a few silver pieces in his pocket and pored still further over his neatly arranged columns of figures while he waited for more data to figure out "per capita." From "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapple in the NATIONAL MAGAZINE for August.

Arch Bishop Prendergast Enthroned.

Upon the enthronement of Arch Bishop Prendergast in Philadelphia last week, Walter George Smith, knight commander of the order of St. Gregory and a member of the Philadelphia Bar, presented the address of the laity, referring to the high and noble qualities of the late Arch Bishop Ryan. In the course of his reply, Arch Bishop Prendergast said: "I beseech you to continue to encourage and help me by your sympathy and prayers, that the spirit of union and brotherhood that now exists between priests and people, may never be disturbed, that the harmony and good will between us and our non-Catholic fellow citizens, who signally blessed the administration of the loving, broad minded prelate, Patrick John Ryan, may always live as a tribute to his revered memory."

Translated Into English.

Every one has heard the story of the Englishman who was told, when asking what was done with all the superfluous fruit grown in California—"We eat what we can and what we can't we can."

The joke was told to another Englishman, who received it with a rather sickly smile, and upon his return home gave his own version of it.

"Queer people, those Americans," he said. "Peculiar sense of humor. They told me as one of their choice jokes that when asked what they did with their fruit that was left over, they answered that 'They ate what they could, and what they couldn't they could.'"

A Skeleton Defined.

The superintendent was in the habit of dropping in to the different class rooms and demanding a recital of lessons from the pupils. One day her active mind hit upon physiology as the study for examination. But the little girl to whom the first question was put so bewildered the superintendent and made her lose her patience that there were no more questions of a similar nature asked. "Tell me," said the superintendent, "what a skeleton is." The little girl thought for a short time. "A skeleton," she asked. "A skeleton? Why, a skeleton is a man with his insides out and his outsides off."

On the 7th page will be found an interesting article on a national Democrat, Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio. Its appearance in the COMPILER has no special meaning as far as we are concerned. We have great admiration for Governor Harmon and his friends have desired the publicity given. The COMPILER stands with the Pennsylvania Democracy for Hon. Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, for the Democratic nomination for President in 1912. We need Wilson to solve the new problems of a government of the people, but that is no reason why we should not accord to other great Democrats our admiration, and Harmon has been able, courageous and clean.

Election Pamphlet.

We acknowledge the receipt of a very complete election pamphlet prepared by Geo. D. Thorn, Chief Clerk State Department and published by Republican State Committee. It covers all the questions that anyone might want to know about the elections of 1911 including the duties of voters, candidates and political committees under acts relating to Personal Registration, "Uniform Primaries," and "Corrupt Practices."

Report of Pa. Milk Investigation.

Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust has issued a statement of the results of his bureau's investigations made this summer under the new Milk and Cream Act and the Act Prohibiting the Addition to Milk and Cream of Dye-stuffs and Drugs, such as were formerly much used as preservatives. The Commissioner reports that 4,000 samples have been purchased by his agents in about 150 cities and towns representing nearly every county of the Commonwealth. In but eight instances was formaldehyde discovered, six of these being in Allegheny county, one in Johnstown and one in York. No other preservatives and no added dye were in any case detected. This, the Commissioner notes, is a most excellent showing as contrasted with the conditions existing a few years ago, when such additions were of common occurrence.

The Commissioner further states that the dairy cows of Pennsylvania have placed the stamp of their approval upon the new milk law. Of the 4,000 samples examined only about 200 were found considerably below standard, and of these about two-thirds were milks, one-third creams. The deficiencies found were not the fault of the cow, but were due to the pump and the skimmer to whose friendly offices some distributors still turn for profit.

An English food expert once said of milk standards that their only fault was that the cow had not been consulted in their making. This, the Commissioner adds, can not fairly be said of the present standards, which are those of the National Government and were adopted by it upon the recommendation of a board of experts acting under authority of Congress and after a careful study of the dairy conditions in all parts of the country.

It is the purpose of the Commissioner to continue vigorously to enforce the milk laws, so that the people and more especially the children of the State may be assured of a good, wholesome supply of this important food.

Lutheran Assembly at Pen-Mar.

The Lutheran Silver Reunion at Pen-Mar on last Thursday brought out a very large attendance from the surrounding territory. Rev. H. H. Weber, D. D., of York, delivered the "Historical and Silver Jubilee Address." Dr. Weber was a member of the original committee which founded this annual gathering of Lutherans on the mountain side.

Dr. Weber, in his address, referred to the early beginnings—the meetings of committees at Gettysburg and Baltimore, planning and devising ways and means. He said that the original idea was not only to make this an annual affair, but to found a Lutheran chautauqua on the top of the mountain. At that time, there were few, if any, cottages there, and only a few hotels, such as the Blue Mountain House and one or two others.

The idea was to have it a permanent affair to continue for several weeks, or probably a month, secure noted lecturers and have musical and other attractions. Plans had been made to erect a series of cottages, tents and so forth and enlist the Lutherans of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

In conclusion Dr. Weber advocated the transfer of the Lutheran summer assembly from Asbury Park to Pen-Mar and urged that it be permanently located on the mountain and that his denomination labor to make it a notable institution.

HOFFMAN ORPHANAGE.

THE HOFFMAN ORPHANAGE

MRS. HOFFMAN WIFE OF DONOR PRESENT ON HAPPY OCCASION.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Helb Promise to Erect Administration Building.

Cottage No. 1 of the George W. and Agnes Hoffman Industrial Orphanage was dedicated on last Thursday. Though five miles from any railroad or trolley over 1200 persons were present showing the interest manifested in this orphanage by the people of the surrounding territory.

The dedication services began at 11.30 and opened with an anthem by a union choir and orchestra directed by H. W. Schwartz. The invocation was made by Rev. A. S. Dechant of Hanover and Rev. F. S. Lindaman of Littlestown, conducted the responsive reading. Rev. Irvin W. Hendricks, D.D., of Chambersburg, led the reciting of the creed. Hymn No. 8 was then sung.

Rev. T. J. Barkley, D.D., of this place, president of the Board of Directors of this place, gave a short historical sketch of the creation of the orphanage by George W. and Agnes Hoffman and the motives dictating the gift.

George W. Hoffman was born in Mt. Pleasant township on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, 1838. He was a veteran of the Civil War. He did not accumulate great wealth but became possessed of two farms in Mt. Joy township, one of 49 acres and the other of 142 acres, and some other means. These farms are about three miles south of Two Taverns and six miles from Littlestown.

Mr. Hoffman was a devout member of St. James' Reformed Church of Mt. Joy township. He was superintendent of the Sunday School for 39 years. He became interested in an orphan at a Reformed church institution in Japan and contributed $1500 for the education of the child and though the education of this child was more or less a failure later gave $1500 towards another child and later he gave $2000 for the erection of Hoffman Hall, a building devoted to education of women in faraway Japan.

The Eastern and Western Synods of the Reformed Church has each an orphanage but the Potomac Synod was without such an institution and Mr. Hoffman proposed to give $5000 and his farms for this purpose. He made known his purpose to Dr. T. J. Barkley who conveyed it to the Synod and gift was accepted. The deed executed by Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman made clear their purpose, land "to be used by the Synod for the purpose of an agricultural and household orphan's home to be known as the George W. and Agnes Hoffman Orphanage. The male children to be taught all kinds of general farm work and the female children general house work, the farming to be carried on by the orphan and made self supporting as far as possible by raising of vegetables, making of butter and feeding and raising of beef, pork and poultry."

This noble benefaction the Potomac Synod proceeded to administer and develop and the $5000 given by Mr. Hoffman was largely expended in stocking the farm and fixing the home on the farm. Cottage No. 1 was begun as soon as possible, the institutional plan of cottages being followed in preference to a large building.

The words of the dedication were pronounced by Dr. Barkley. "We here assembled do now set apart this house as a monument of love under the name of Cottage No. 1 of the George W. and Agnes Hoffman Industrial Orphanage, to be devoted to all the uses of a Christian home for orphan boys and girls, to do honor to a noble family, to give glory to God who is the Father of the fatherless, and to render praise to our Saviour who so graciously called little children to Himself, laid hands upon them to love them and bless them; and this we do in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

A financial statement by the treasurer of the board, Rev. C. S. Slagle, D.D., of Westminster, was then presented showing a high satisfactory condition and one that should appeal to the Reformed world. The farm and all buildings have been put in first class condition and well stocked and Cottage No. 1 erected at an expenditure of about $1200. The available cash at hand was Mr. Hoffman's gift of $5000 leaving a debt of less than $7000.

Rev. Dr. Barkley here introduced Rev. Dr. T. J. Hackett, of Roanoke Va., the president of the Potomac Synod, who delivered the address of the occasion. Dr. Hackett felicitated the management upon the success attending the beginning of this enterprise and complimented the ladies present for their manifest interest and said that it augurs well for the home that the ladies have shown their sympathy for the cause of the orphan. Dr. Hackett said in part: The founding of the Orphanage is an inspiration from God in response to appeal of the helpless. The formal dedication of an orphan's home becomes an event in the community, a forward step by the Church in harmony with the spirit of Jesus.

Forty-five years ago Rev. Barringer of Philadelphia, Pa., gathered a few homeless children into his own home. That was the beginning and now after these years the Reformed Church has five orphan homes with a total property value of $272,000 and has at the proper age sent forth 1,762 fully prepared for their positions in life; and last year cared for 368 children.

The position of the orphan child in relation to itself is not different from other children: with a body to grow strong and develop physical skill, with a mind with capacity for wisdom and culture, with a soul to be trained in faith in God and service to Christ, with emotions and ambitions, faults and failings like other children, yet being an orphan, there is first, a challenge to pity and sympathy. No mother to caress and to pray, no father to provide and advise, no home for comfort or shelter; for the orphan there is no cure for homesickness since it has no home. Then secondly it occasions speculative and calculating interest. How shall the child be fed and clothed and housed and educated? Shall the orphan be turned over to the cold political mercies of the State? Shall it be placed in an almshouse? No. Every almshouse is already a reproach to the Church and it was a sad day for the Church when it surrendered its rights to care for the Lord's poor. The position of the orphan challenges grave consideration. Without home and the restraining influence of parents, isolated and lonely, if left to its own resources the tendency will be to gravitate toward wickedness and sin, and eventually become a burden and a menace to society. Now in order to properly provide for the orphan there needs to be more than a house and food and clothing and learning the three R's.

This child needs the benefits of the first institution established by divine wisdom and love, viz, the home. A home that becomes a school for the development of character, a banking house of happiness, a market place of industry and footstool of worship to Almighty God.

The State makes liberal appropriation for an army and navy, for the detection and punishment of crime, for public utilities and for the conservation of forest and stream and all sorts of animal life, but the State fails to make appropriation for the development of strong American citizenship and strong Christian character. Therefore the Church provides a home for the orphan in which there are fostered noble ambitions and high ideals and produces not feminine mouse-oecies and masculine nonentities but honest, manly men and sweet, virtuous womanhood.

This is to be an industrial orphanage. The idea is good industry is the basis of happiness and the foundation of prosperity. The intention being to broaden the home into a technical school, the workshop and an experiment station upon these fertile acres. The tendency of the times being to produce the unusual or phenomenal either in quality or quantity, the farm presents innumerable possibilities. A watch factory will produce watches, a cotton mill, bolts of cloth, a shoe factory shoes; this institution, dealing with living personalities will produce producers. Yes, producers of all that goes to make life happy.

The voluntary contribution taken up amounted to $160 and with other features of the dedication over $200 was realized. Seven children have been admitted and at the meeting of the board seven others were admitted. After Hymn 361, prayer and the doxology, Rev. S. H. Stein pronounced the benediction.

One of the happy features of the occasion was the presence of Mrs. Agnes Hoffman, one of the donors of the institution, and it was a day the memory of which will be sweet to her as long as she lives; the little lives she has helped to give a happy home to where they will learn to be useful. A picture was taken of the new orphanage with Mrs. Hoffman as central figure and as one expressed it she looked the sweet motherly woman who could help do such an act of beneficence.

A sumptuous dinner was served by ladies of the Reformed Church. Rev. J. Stewart Hartman, Superintendent of the institution, had left nothing undone to aid the success of the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Copenhaver have been elected home father and mother of Cottage No. 1.

The dedication was given a most cheering note by the encouragement given by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Helb of York. They were present and authorized an announcement that they will provide during the coming year an administration building.

The strength of the school can be measured by the work done by its faculty. The work in the class room is the test of the school's standing. Look over the list of teachers that are engaged at Millersville and you will be impressed with their ability and understand why the Millersville State Normal School ranks among the first schools of the kind in the country.

LaFollette on Taft.

In a recent speech in Senate LaFollette summed up his indictment of Taft as follows:

"Heir to the Roosevelt policies, as a Presidential candidate Mr. Taft was pronounced progressive and the leading and most enthusiastic Roosevelt champion from the first to the last day of the campaign. He had no sooner taken the oath of office than he sacrificed the progressive cause for the support of Aldrich and Cannon and their reactionary program. Rebuked at the polls in the election of 1910, he foolishly tried to buy back with post office appointments the support of the progressives in Congress, which he had lost when he abandoned the progressive policies. In the same spirit he is now trying to regain the lost confidence of the public by Cabinet changes, in the hope that the people will forget. The President's course has been vacillating and without any definite policy because apparently there has been throughout his Administration no deep conviction other than as the hour makes appear expedient."

GOVERNOR JUDSON HARMON OF OHIO

By A. V. ABERNETHY

COLUMBUS, O.—[Special].—When the bribery charges against members of the Ohio general assembly exploded with the suddenness and force of a bomb and sent scores on a hunt for lawyers Governor Judson Harmon took the same view of the personality of guilt that he did when he reported to President Roosevelt that Paul Morton, a member of his cabinet, had been guilty of granting rebates while an officer of the Santa Fe railroad. "Guilt is always personal," said Harmon to Roosevelt, and he resigned his commission to investigate rebating because Teddy was inclined to shield Morton.

A few hours after the bribery charges were filed the Ohio executive sent out an order that no man should be spared in the legislative bouding investigation. Party and even personal friendships must be set aside, the governor said, and the entire situation cleaned up.

Throughout nineteen years of continuous control Republican state administrations, when charges of irregularities were made involving members of their party, assumed the attitude, "They are our thieves and we must defend them." There is an Ohio statute which grants immunity to every citizens had been demanding and pleading for in vain for decades.

The supremely important achievements of the Ohio Democracy under the leadership of Governor Harmon may be divided into transactions and legislations, first, for the elimination of graft; second, such reform in the tax system as will protect the taxpayer from the tax spender and will compel corporations to stop dodging taxes and pay along with all individual property owners; third, the application of business methods and economy in public expenditures, and, fourth, the enactment of purely non-partisan laws for the benefit of the entire people, irrespective of political parties, and designed to make rule by interest seeking corporations extremely difficult and rule by the people easy.

After he became governor two years ago Mr. Harmon quietly began his investigation of the methods by which public money had been looted by Republican state treasurers. He learned they put interest earnings in their pockets. There followed in rapid order suits against the estate and bondsmen of W. S. McKinnon, former state treasurer, for $116,785 and interest thereon; against former State Treasurer I. B. Cameron and his bondsmen for $211,721 and interest thereon. They were vote for a Republican for United States senator if the people by their votes declared for a Republican," the governor told this committee during the conference. "I would be proud to do it. I would simply be doing the will of the people." One of the committee suggested the Oregon plan was undemocratic. The executive replied, "It's the very essence of Democracy to put the government back into the hands of the people and let them say whom they want for United States senator."

Governor Harmon took a new tack and had a similar measure offered in the house, the Wyman bill. That body passed it and sent it to the senate, where the governor finally got sufficient Republican votes to save it.

Ohioans had demonstrations recently that their judiciary, one of the most sacred institutions of a free government, had been invaded by party bosses in their inordinate thirst for power. Instead of being places where the people could turn to invoke the penalties of the criminal statutes on those who had offended certain courts were being used, in cases where men of vast political power were concerned, to shield violators from the vengeance of the law.

But the general assembly took a long step forward from boss domination of the courts by enacting a bill providing in the future that all Ohio judges, from the dignified gowned justices of the supreme court down to the humble laymen who sit as justices of the peace, shall be elected on tickets absolutely free from party emblem or device. Nominations may be made by conventions, but the power of bosses to control nominations was broken by a clause in the bill which says that nominations may be made by petitions. There is not another such law in the United States.

Ohio has been hampered by the crude, unwieldy machinery of a constitution which was adopted in 1851, and the subject of making a new organic law is the biggest and most important proposition that has come before a Buckeye general assembly in many years. Selfish hands were being outstretched to get control of the constitutional convention to be held in 1912 when Governor Harmon took charge of the arrangements for it and succeeded in getting through the general assembly a bill which will remove the delegates from political influence and make them responsible to the people only. So well did he manage the campaign that Ohio will set a precedent for all other states to follow when they come to rewrite their organic laws.

Nominations of delegates will be made by petition only, and nominees will be elected on ballots absolutely free from party device or emblem or any form of party designation. The liquor question, which has been a sore spot in Ohio for sixty years, will be finally settled when the new constitution is adopted.

The state when Governor Harmon grasped the reins of government had nineteen penal, reformatory and benevolent institutions, with the responsibility of governing them divided among nineteen separate boards of trustees, three members to a board. They were so conducted as to secure neither economy nor best results.

These trusteeships, all honorable positions and eagerly sought after, had been used as a sort of currency to purchase nominations and to repay the boys who had delivered votes in conventions. The trustees appointed superintendents and all subordinates, and these combined to furnish the dynamic power for the steam roller which the late Mark Hanna and Boss George B. Cox used to crush the life out of rebellions against the rule of the G. O. P. machine.

Governor Harmon's idea was that "the establishments which a Christian state maintains for charity are sacred and that every selfish purpose should perish at their doors."

Acting on this principle, the governor framed and forced through the general assembly a bill placing all employees of the institutions ranking below superintendent under civil service rules. The nineteen separate boards of trustees and nineteen stewards under this law were legislated out of office, and the duties of the fifty-seven trustees compelling all Ohio political divisions to purchase such supplies as they need from the penal institutions.

Employers and employees locked in a struggle over a workmen's compensation act, and when it seemed there would be no bill passed Governor Harmon stepped in and acted as arbitrator. A bill was framed and drafted that has been approved by both employees and employers.

The compulsory provisions which made the New York act unconstitutional were not incorporated into the Ohio act. Instead the employer could elect either to pay into the compensation fund or not to pay. If he should not avail himself of the law, however, the employee may sue for damages for injuries, or his legal representative in case of death may maintain the action. And in such suits the employer is deprived of the common law defenses of lined in Dayton has never ceased. No governor has ever been opposed by so strong a force as Governor Harmon.

During his first term of two years a Republican general assembly to discredit him reduced the treasury balance $2,652,878.68 by making appropriations exceed revenues and also created obligations amounting to $2,000,000 more by deciding to build new structures for state institutions. When the revenues were reduced $500,000 a year by voting out saloons and several hundred thousands of dollars were added to the wrong column by the abolishment of prison labor contracts. Harmon's arms were apparently tired, and his enemies laughed at his discomfort.

The governor promptly reduced public expenditures. Then, instead of a general levy, the proper enforcement of the excise laws provided $500,000 additional every year. The establishment bear him talk straight from the shoulder.

When he was attorney general he argued many cases before the supreme court—argued them well—so well that he earned many deserving compliments from bench and bar. Among them, and perhaps the most noted, was that of the United States against the Trans-Missouri Freight association. It was the first test as to the efficiency of the Sherman anti-trust law when applied to prevent an illegal combination of railroads. Mr. Harmon won, and the combination went by the boards.

Of a similar character were the suits against the Freight Traffic association and the Addyston Pipe company. Harmon was successful in both, and thus was established the law as it stands today.

There is an odd series of coincidences in the careers of Governor Harmon and President Taft. Always Harmon has followed Taft or Taft has followed Harmon. Harmon resigned as judge in Ohio, and Taft took his place. Then Mr. Taft became solicitor general of the United States. Harmon followed him to Washington as a cabinet member. Will he follow Taft to Washington again?

Governor Harmon was born in Newtown, Hamilton county, O., Feb. 3, 1846, and he therefore is in his sixty-fifth year. One not acquainted with this fact would take him to be no more than fifty-five. He is just as vigorous as a man of many years under fifty-five and as fond of sports and of the out of doors as a schoolboy. He rides with the grace of a regular army cavalryman, plays golf, competes with the crack rifle shots of the O. N. G. annually and makes good scores, goes to Michigan every summer for his vacation and fishes and fishes, and he is a baseball fan of the species that record each play made during a game on a score card.

He was for years pitcher in a nine composed of business men who met every Saturday afternoon out in the suburbs of the Queen City to try diamond conclusions with teams from other localities. Judson Harmon never missed a game while he was in town. He would go to the ball field, shed his coat and collar and wade in and pitch nine straight innings with all the vigor of a big leaguer.

Mr. Harmon's father was a Baptist minister, and from him he received his early education. In 1866 he graduated from the Baptist college at Denison, Licking county, and in 1892 the school honored him with the degree of LL. D. He attended the Cincinnati Law school and graduated in 1869.

Mr. Harmon's idea of what Democracy should do can be summed up in the closing words of an interview which he gave, as follows:

"I take it that the true platform of the Democracy is the preservation to the utmost of the rights of the common man—the man who has not might or wealth to twist the current of events to suit himself, to observe to the strictest possible degree the limits of authority imposed by the constitution, to administer the government economically and in doing that to levy only the amount of taxes, direct or through a tariff, which will meet the expenses of the government."

"Am I a believer in the income tax?" said the governor in response to a question. "Most assuredly," he continued. "Without such a tax the expenses of the federal government, which now amount to a billion dollars per year, cannot be fairly distributed. They are now collected by tariff and other taxes on consumption, and the enormous vested wealth of the country escapes. A few states have undertaken to tax incomes, but, as I am advised, with little success. Changes of legal residence are too easy to make. The efficiency of a federal income tax has been proved. The levying of one would help secure the lowering of tariff taxes, so greatly and generally desired, while the people will watch more closely what is done with their money when they know they are paying taxes and how much."

fellow servant rule, assumed risk and contributory negligence.

The employee cannot resort to the courts for damages when injured in the factory of a corporation which pays into the state compensation fund except when the injury is caused by the disregard of a law, ordinance or order issued by an authorized public officer providing for the protection of employees or by the willful wrong of an employer, his officer or agents.

The employer contributes 90 per cent of the compensation fund and the employees 10 per cent. Awards range from $3,400 to $1,500 and are graded on the scale of wages paid employees.

The taxing laws of the state were a joke when Mr. Harmon was inducted into office and the taxpayers had no means to check extravagance of their public officers. These men decided on the amount of money they were going to spend in a year and then made a levy to produce that amount. Taxpayers could do nothing but pay.

"The authority which demands must be curbed," said the executive in a message to the general assembly. That body obeyed and passed the Smith bill which limited the maximum tax rate that could be levied by public officers in each district to 1 per cent of tax duplicates. That was sufficient, the governor held, for an economical administration. If more money were needed there was incorporated in the Smith bill a provision for a referendum vote on a higher rate.

There were a large number of taxing boards composed of various state officers with jurisdiction over excise and other corporate taxation, but different boards were made up of different officers so that there could be no uniform and consistent action. Auditors in eighty-eight Ohio counties had nearly eighty-eight different rules of appraising property, with the result that no one got a square deal.

Governor Harmon had a bill drafted to abolish all these boards and to place the entire taxing machinery of the commonwealth in the hands of a single state commission of three members. Other new tax laws make it possible to chase out of hiding millions of dollars of property and also strengthen and broaden the inquisitorial powers of the state tax commission.

Ohioans expected big things from Judson Harmon when they elected him their governor. The achievements of the Democratic general assembly show the expectations of the people have been realized. He had been a leading attorney for years, but a search of his record disclosed Harmon, while he had corporations among his clients, had never given his talents to appear in a court suit against the people. As an attorney general of the United States he had proved to be a friend of the people, fighting through court cases which established the foundation of all jurisprudence on the anti-trust subject. In private life he was recognized as one of the ablest lawyers in Ohio.

In February, 1910, ten months before the state election in Ohio, when Judson Harmon would go before the people for re-election, Ohio Republicans by order of President Taft held a harmony meeting in Dayton. The Republicans at Dayton did not talk of helping President Taft or of restoring the Republican party; they talked about the chance of defeating Governor Harmon, and they did not talk hopefully. Unconsciously they paid a patent tribute to the real strength of the man. It suddenly revealed the tremendous success of Governor Harmon and his complete mastery of the political situation in Ohio. The plan of opposition out-of a market for prison manufactured goods and the concentration of authority over nineteen state institutions is expected to add another $500,000 to the state revenues. Thus was the situation met and the state restored to a sound financial basis without any additional burdens being imposed on the people who are least able to be further taxed.

Voters like to support clean and able men, as has been demonstrated in many localities where the electors displayed remarkable discrimination in honoring exceptional men with an exceptional vote. This explains why in a strongly Republican state Judson Harmon was elected governor of Ohio two years ago by a plurality of 19,372 in the face of a Republican plurality of 69,591 in the vote for president. On his record as governor of the state Judson Harmon was prepared to go before the people and ask re-election.

With precedent against him, the election machinery against him, with the president of the United States, a citizen of the same state, fighting him for re-election and in the face of a strong Republican sentiment to combat, Governor Harmon nevertheless was given a majority of 101,000.

Ohio repudiated her favorite son, William H. Taft, president of the United States. Governor Harmon won the greatest Democratic victory in the history of Ohio or of the middle west. It was a crushing blow to the president.

There are some things in Ohio more popular than the Taft smile. One of them is the Hon. Judson Harmon, who will countenance no frills and who sits on the edge of a big table that occupies the center of the governor's reception room and chats with visitors. "Common as an old shoe" is the way Ohio farmers size up their governor after they see him perched on that table, swinging his feet, and

A workmen's compensation act so that injured employees can get damages without expensive and tedious litigation.

A public utility commission with authority to regulate issues of stock, rates, mergers and service.

A corrupt practices act that will make vote buying in primaries and elections a dangerous undertaking.

A central board of control for nineteen state institutions to take the place of nineteen separate boards of trustees with their corps of employees. This bill places subordinate employees in the institution under civil service.

A shorter ballot by abolishing boards of infirmity directors of three members each.

A reform of Ohio election laws to prevent corruption and fraud.

To have delegates to the 1912 Ohio constitutional convention nominated by petition only and elected on nonpartisan ballots.

To stimulate the agricultural industry by requiring agriculture to be taught in all Ohio village and country schools.

Ratification of the proposed income tax amendment to the federal constitution.

Memorializing congress to call a convention to provide for the direct election of United States senators.

Insuring the honest handling of all state money by depositing in banks under the competitive bidding plan.

Creating a fund of $3,000,000 every year by general levy to give Ohio a system of improved roadways equal to the best in the world.

A complete reformation of tax laws that will put tax dodgers out of business and will compel corporations and owners of intangible property that have been dodging taxes to place their holdings on the duplicate the same as small property owners. Included in this is a 1 per cent tax levy limit bill.

Providing for the construction of a women's reformatory and placing all girls in the state correctional institutions under the control of a woman.

Public utilities bill, corrupt practices act and the initiative and referendum have passed both houses, but are in the hands of the conference committee. These bills will become laws in satisfactory form.

HON. JUDSON HARMON, GOVERNOR OF OHIO.

one who testifies before a legislative committee, and this law, together with a whitewash brush, had prevented any Republican law violator from being haled before a court of justice.

Naturally there was a great rush by distraught members for legislative immunity. But Governor Harmon promptly pulled the plug of the immunity bathtub and prevented any one bathing in its soothing waters by insisting that no legislative investigating committee be appointed and that the inquest of the grand jury be the only probe.

Indictments were returned against seven members of the general assembly and the sergeant-at-arms of the senate, and these cases will take the same course as that of the most humble citizen who becomes involved in criminal charges. A coterie of Democrats who had been fighting the governor's bills were among the members indicted.

In less than three years of his administration Governor Harmon has made a record of accomplishment unparalleled in the history of Ohio politics. He has wrought more progress for the people than was accomplished in the forty years that preceded him. There has been written into the statutes legislation that the enlightened

Republicans. Another graft investigation brought forth the exposure, prosecution and conviction of Mark Slater, former Republican state printer, on graft charges in lesser degree; the settlement of an interest claim of over $5,700 on funds carried in the bank for former Republican State Auditor Walter D. Guilbert and the filing of a claim for over $31,000 with the receiver of a defunct bank at Columbus as an interest charge on funds carried in that bank by Mr. Guilbert as auditor.

These revelations during the governor's first term awakened the civic conscience and paved the way for his subsequent re-election. The Democrats captured the general assembly at the same time.

Then Governor Harmon renewed his efforts in behalf of certain bills two Republican general assemblies denied him.

The most notable achievement accomplished by the executive during the legislative session was the enactment of the Wyman bill, including the Oregon plan of nominating and electing United States senators.

A conference committee was appointed to frame a compromise senatorial nomination and election bill. "I would Guilt is always personal.

I would vote for a Republican for United States senator if the people by their votes declared for a Republican, and I would be proud to do it, for I would simply be doing the will of the people.

The party emblem in municipal elections is an aid to the ignorant and those who corrupt voters and no help to upright and intelligent electors. Both parties would be better off if they were kept out of purely municipal elections.

The people who support the government have to economize. Why should their public servants not do the same?

It is not the existence or discovery of wrongdoing that brings shame to a state, but failure to put a stop to it.

We must make the state government more broadly useful, for its powers are ample to grapple with many things which have been developed by new conditions.

There can be no relief so long as the interests which profit through tariff laws are allowed to frame them.

A lawyer's honor is his crown, and no hand but his own can ever dis-crown him.

Why not Cook with Gas

Don't you know your house would be many degrees cooler if you used a gas stove, and all the home people that much more comfortable.

Gas cooks faster than other fuel, hence less length of heat. A match gives the gas in full force, and cooking done, a turn of the knob removes the heat.

An economical use of gas will result in lower bills than paid for any other fuel and that means the saving of money, heat, fuel carrying and removal of ashes.
